OF VOLUME # 33 OF THE STATISTICAL BULLETIN.

The Market Value of Outstanding Corporate Stock in the United States

At year-end 1973, the estimated market value of all outstanding corporate stock in the United States, including both common and preferred stock, was $920.7 billion, a decline of approximately 21 percent from the $1,163.2 billion reported at the close of 1972.

The market value of total stock outstanding for the period 1964 to 1973 is presented in the accompanying table. These estimates were derived from the following calculations: 1) Total corporate stock was obtained by adding the value of stocks listed on all exchanges, stocks traded over-the-counter and closely-held corporate stock; 2) total domestic stock was calculated by deducting the value of investment company shares, foreign issues and intercorporate holdings from total corporate stock; and 3) portfolio foreign stock was added to total domestic stock outstanding to obtain the market value of total corporate stock outstanding in the United States, including foreign and domestic issues.

At the end of 1973, the market value of stocks listed on all exchanges was $763.8 billion, as compared to $932.7 billion in 1972. Listed stocks comprise about 80 percent of total stock outstanding, and the value of NYSE listed stocks continue to account for more than 90 percent of total listed stocks. The market value of stocks traded in the over-the-counter market was an estimated $196.3 billion in 1973, down from the $263.4 billion in 1972.

The 1973 total domestic stock, including intercorporate holdings, was $998.8 billion after deducting $70.5 billion and $56.9 billion, respectively, for investment companies and foreign companies. Total domestic stock was $912.9 billion after subtracting intercorporate holdings of $85.9 billion.

An article by Le Manh Tri in the September 1971 issue of the SEC Statistical Bulletin gives a more detailed explanation of the procedures used in estimating the market value of total stock outstanding.
